Can agency solve housing crisis?

City hall. New entity has mandate to build 2,500 affordable units

EMILY JACKSON
emily.jackson@metronews.ca

The city plans to launch a dedicated housing agency in its latest bid to solve the affordable-housing crisis that prices would-be homeowners out of the real-estate market and keeps people with lower incomes struggling to pay rent.

City council will vote this week to establish the Vancouver Affordable Housing Agency, a separate corporate entity with a budget of about $1 million per year and a mandate to build 2,500 new affordable-housing units by 2021.

It plans to fill those units with people whose incomes range from the welfare shelter rate of $375 per month to a family household rate of less than $86,500. Housing is considered affordable if it costs 30 per cent or less of a person's total income.

"We have some of the worst housing prices in the world in Vancouver. If we want to deal with that, we have to be innovative and quick on our feet," Vision Vancouver Coun. Geoff Meggs said Sunday.

The new agency will get housing built faster because it will be a one-stop shop for developers or non-profits with proposals to build affordable housing in the city, Meggs said.

Instead of having to go through a complex mix of city departments, proposals will be dealt with by the agency that has the power to form partnerships and redevelop selected city land.

It will focus on building three-bedroom units, a rare find for families on a budget in city limits. Its board will be appointed by council, which will also get a say in the agency's operating budget and business plan.

Housing authorities already exist in pricey cities such as Whistler, San Francisco, New York and London.

But NPA Coun. George Affleck questioned why the city needs another agency when it's council's mandate to deal with real estate.

"We're creating a bureaucracy that will be a black hole of information," Affleck said. "It's redundant and I don't think we need it."

The proposal comes on the heels of the draft 2015-to-2018 capital budget, which recommends an unprecedented $125 million be spent on affordable housing. That's about triple the spending in the last capital budget.

The NPA would prefer to make deals using the city's land rather than spend cash on affordable housing, Affleck said.

Two rushed to hospital following nightclub stabbing

Two men were rushed to hospital in the early morning hours of Sunday after being stabbed in front of a Vancouver nightclub.

Vancouver police were called outside Prive nightclub, at 750 Pacific Blvd., at 3 a.m. to deal with a large fight that had broken out.

Once there, they found the two victims suffering from apparent stab wounds.

Both were taken to hospital but are expected to recover.

Investigators spoke to several witnesses and reviewed surveillance video to determine what happened during the altercation. The investigation continues. METRO

Mayor separates from wife amid rumours

'Mutual decision.' Robertson has moved to a condo downtown while his wife remains in the house they bought in Kitsilano

Mayor Gregor Robertson and his wife, Amy, have amicably parted ways, the former first couple confirmed in a statement this weekend after online rumours surfaced alleging the mayor had an affair.

"As people close to our family are aware, we recently agreed to separate. This is a personal and private matter for our family, and contrary to false rumours being spread online, it is a mutual decision that we made amicably and together," they wrote in a joint announcement that asked for privacy for them and their four adult children.

Despite calls for privacy, the mayor's political party Vision Vancouver made the fight public.

Less than an hour after the announcement, Vision issued a statement accusing rival political party the Non-Partisan Association of spreading "false rumours and personal attacks."

The statement included a June 16 email from NPA president Rob Macdonald to the mayor about the "terrible gossip" that Robertson was thrown out by his wife amid "widely rumored philandering."

People were posting such comments on Facebook pages and phoning media outlets to try to get the story out, Vision Vancouver spokeswoman Marcella Munro said Sunday.

"Amy and Gregor wanted to keep this private, but at some point they felt there were too many of these lies being disseminated that they wanted to make a statement," Munro said.

Vision distributed Macdonald's email to show the NPA is "backwards" and "wants to fight a campaign based on personal attacks in the shadows."

"This is not the kind of campaign we intend to run. We want to talk about the issues that are important to the people in Vancouver," she said, calling on expected NPA mayoral candidate Kirk LaPointe, former managing editor of the Vancouver Sun, to explain the email.

LaPointe, after reiterating that he has not declared his candidacy, commented on Macdonald's email in a Facebook post on Sunday.

"One reason I am attracted to run for office is the ability to bring forward and discuss the positive ideas our city needs. Nothing positive comes from the discussion of personal issues," LaPointe wrote. "As a journalist, I have had many opportunities to report on the private lives of public figures. I long ago concluded that, unless there is an impact on duties, those matters are irrelevant."

Meantime, the mayor has moved to a condo downtown while his wife remains in the house they bought last year in Kitsilano, one block away from the Point Grey Road greenway.

Victoria. Interim deal for hospital physicians

A potential crisis at Victoria hospitals has been averted, but critical issues between Island Health and Victoria Hospitalist Physicians are a threat to long-term peace.

Hospitalists signed an interim agreement with Island Health on Friday, allowing hospital doctors to be paid until the end of October as the parties negotiate a new contract after the previous agreement expired June 30.

Sixty doctors at Royal Jubilee and Victoria General hospitals began the month uncertain if, and how, they would be paid after rejecting a proposed contract from the health authority that sought to dramatically alter their workplace conditions.

"A four-month interim agreement between Island Health and the hospitalists in South Island has been reached. This will give Island Health and the hospitalists time to reach a longer term agreement," read a statement from Island Health. "All services that have been provided to patients over the past year will continue to be provided."

Victoria Hospitalist Physicians, one of the biggest and oldest associations of its kind in B.C., had earlier accused the health authority of bargaining in bad faith for using hardball tactics like allowing the contract to expire, posting job ads for hospitalist positions and not being open to mediation.

One of the association's lead negotiators, Dr. Wayne DeMott, said Island Health's proposed contract contained a radically new, "unrealistic and unsustainable" model that would hand over scheduling and staffing at hospitals to the authority and increase workloads to unsafe levels. It would also shift compensation to a fee-for-service model that doesn't work in a hospital setting, argues DeMott (who fears the model, if forced through, could have provincial implications).

"It's not safe," DeMott said last week. "Doctors would be seeing way more patients than is possible. We are concerned about the health of physicians."

Island Health would not make anyone available for comment. MATT KIELTYKA/METRO

B.C. and city want pipeline answers

Both the province and the City of Vancouver say Kinder Morgan isn't answering all of their questions when it comes to the oil and gas company's contentious plan to expand the Trans Mountain pipeline.

Both governments asked the National Energy Board on Friday to demand Kinder Morgan share extra information with them after unsatisfactory initial responses to their questions, filed in their roles as intervenors in the public hearing process for the pipeline.

How the company would deal with oil spills remains the top concern for both the city and the province, as the proposal would mean hundreds of additional tankers traversing through the Burrard Inlet annually.

Confidentiality concerns stopped Kinder Morgan from answering some of the emergency management questions, but the city wasn't impressed with that excuse. EMILY JACKSON/METRO

New York. Firefighter killed battling blaze in public-housing highrise

The Fire Department of New York is mourning the death of a lieutenant who became trapped while looking for victims in a public-housing highrise blaze, the first city firefighter to die in the line of duty in more than two years.

Lt. Gordon Ambelas died Saturday after suffering multiple injuries while on the 19th floor of the 21-storey building in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn, officials said.

"We lost a real hero tonight and our hearts are heavy," Mayor Bill de Blasio said of the 14-year veteran of the force.

Fellow firefighters found Ambelas unconscious and carried him out of the building. He died at a hospital, the mayor said.

"Ambelas went into the apartment to search for life and did not come out, and by the time his brother firefighters found him, it was too late for him," Fire Commissioner Daniel Nigro said.

Lac-Mégantic marks one year of its tragedy

Remembering. Residents, officials attend church service and overnight march

Hours after a solemn procession passed the spot where tragedy struck Lac-Mégantic a year ago Sunday, crowds packed Ste-Agnès Church to remember the 47 people who perished when a runaway train derailed in the centre of town and exploded.

First responders who plunged in to fight the inferno that erupted after the train jumped the tracks were given a resounding round of applause when they entered the church Sunday.

Framed photographs of the victims were on display alongside bouquets of flowers at the front of the church, which sits not far from the crash site. In a poignant, personal touch, a baseball glove lay in front of one man's photo.

"You have given us a beautiful message of dignity and strength. Yes, there have been tears and great suffering but at the same time there has been overwhelming generosity and love," said Sherbrooke diocese Archbishop Luc Cyr, who presided over the service.

Some of those tears were shed Sunday by people gathered outside the church to watch the service as it was projected onto a big screen metres from the derailment site. A number of people sat on lawn chairs and dabbed at their eyes.

The Sunday service was the latest commemoration in a weekend of events to remember the tragedy. A moment of silence followed the ceremony and a monument to the victims in the form of a large granite book with their names inscribed was dedicated on the church's lawn.

Dignitaries including Gov.-Gen. David Johnston and Quebec Premier Philippe Couillard lay bouquets of flowers in front of the monument after attending the church service late Sunday morning.

After the service, Mayor Colette Roy-Laroche urged Lac-Mégantic residents to "keep the faith."

Earlier Sunday morning, more than 1,000 people marched in solemn silence in the darkness after observing a moment of silence at 1:15 a.m. That was the exact moment on July 6, 2013, when the fuel-laden train derailed and exploded in a series of cataclysmic fireballs.

Many participants in the march wore glowing plastic stars on their chests. Several wiped away tears as they held hands with the person next to them.

Most stared sadly at the downtown area where dozens of buildings were gutted. To this day the zone remains off-limits behind metal fences as decontamination work continues.

A half-dozen people left the march to sit side-by-side on the railway track, looking at their broken town.

Riding out stock peaks and valleys

HOW TO ROLL
Alison Griffiths
metronews.ca

It took only six years for investors to get back to zero. On Wednesday, June 18, the major Toronto stock market index finally eclipsed the previous record high, set in 2008 (on the very same day, no less).

Just to prove it wasn't a fluke, the TSX Composite Index rang up a new high of 15,209 last Wednesday.

This means that if you had put $100 into the TSX Composite Index six years ago you would have $100 today. Whoop-dee-do!

Not quite so grim a story is that of total return, which accounts both for price of the stocks and dividends paid out by the listed companies. Between June 6, 2008, and March 2010, the TSX Composite Total Return Index plummeted 47 per cent from an all-time high of 37,051. But the index had completely recovered by April 2010 and then forged ahead, encountering a few bumpy patches along the way, to its current level of over 45,500.

So, running the numbers again and including dividends, that same $100 invested in June 2008 would be worth nearly $123. That's a mere 3.8 per cent average annual return, but, still, it's better than zero.

What's the lesson in all of this? There are three.

1. Dividends matter
Dividends can keep your portfolio afloat. While stock prices gyrate, dividends from blue-chip companies usually stay the course. During the recession, most of the biggest Canadian companies maintained dividend payments, though few increased them.

2. Time matters
Time heals most investment wounds. Investing at the top of the market hurts when there's a downturn, but history tells us that equities trend steadily upward over time, especially when you factor in dividends.

3. Regularity matters
It is true of our bowels and also of investing. Those who kept buying steadily through the recession and the subsequent recovery caught the highs but also the lows. This is called dollar cost averaging.

Whether the market goes up or down, keep these lessons in mind while investing.

GRANVILLE ISLAND HODGEPODGE

URBAN COMPASS

Paul Sullivan
vancouver@metronews.ca

It's not really clear why Granville Island works.

Put a cement factory next to a live theatre venue next to a public market next to a design school next to a hotel next to a food fair, add traffic and stir. Locate it all under an eight-lane bridge.

Voila! It works.

More than 10 million people visit Granville Island's 300 businesses and studios every year, making it the second most popular tourist attraction in Canada. It generates $35 million annual tax revenue.

Granville Island has been a happy hodgepodge since it was developed back in the 1970s. But now the hodge is threatened by the podge. There appears to be a conspiracy to turn over the management of the site at a time when its largest tenant, the Emily Carr University of Art and Design, is leaving for fancy new digs on Great Northern Way in 2016.

Probably one of the reasons for Granville Island's surprising success is that it is run by the Canada Housing and Mortgage Corporation (CMHC) and as nobody knows what the CMHC does or where it is, it appears immune to the usual pressures of development. There are no condos, fashion outlets or fast food chains on Granville Island. Therefore, unlike everywhere else (which is like everywhere else), there's nowhere else like it.

If you know what I mean.

Now it looks as if CMHC is trying to offload Granville Island on Port Metro Vancouver.

Vancouver Mayor Gregor Robertson, who has an ongoing argument with the Port about its willingness to ship coal and other toxic substances through Paradise West, objects strenuously.

The mayor wants it turned over to the City of Vancouver or some independent body, such as the Vancouver Airport Authority. Anybody but the Port.

Hedy Fry, who's the MP for the area, also wants to get involved, because she can. Of course, Granville Island was born under a Liberal government, and if Stephen Harper's poll results continue to tank, Hedy and the Liberals may end up back in charge sooner than you think.

So, the stage is set for a major mud wrestle over the future of Granville Island. He or she who gains the upper hand will be in a perfect position to ruin the happy hodgepodge. Get rid of the cement factory! Bring in Tim Hortons and McDonald's! Add dedicated bike lanes! Make sidewalks mandatory! Add more brew pubs and wineries! Condos, condos, condos!

Personally, I think the secret is the cement factory. That's why it's magic, because no one else has a cement factory. I mean, who in their right mind would build a world-class tourist destination around a cement factory?

So, let's keep the cement factory in the, uh, mix.

Maybe that will remind people that magic is not easy.

JUMPING WITH THE BULLS

Papa's Pamplona

Thousands of people have crammed into the main square and adjacent narrow streets of Spain's Pamplona for the start of the famed San Fermin running of the bulls festival.

The fiesta, an uproarious blend of hair-raising daily bull runs and all-night partying, was immortalized in Ernest Hemingway's 1926 novel The Sun Also Rises.

By the numbers

3,500

The regional government of Navarre said this year's festivities would be patrolled by 3,500 police to keep the adrenaline- and alcohol-fuelled events as safe as possible.

Firework rocket?

Revellers wearing traditional white outfits trimmed with red neckerchiefs and cummerbunds gathered for Sunday's launching of a firework rocket, which signals the beginning of the nine-day festival.

- Animal rights activists protested Saturday, warning that 48 bulls are killed at the festival each year.

When in Michigan ... 80-foot spit takes annual cherry pit-spitting contest

When it comes to pit-spitting, it's tough to beat the Krause family, who on Saturday maintained their dominance in the 41st International Cherry Pit-Spitting Championship in southeastern Michigan.

Brian Krause took top honours with a distance of 80 feet, eight inches (24.59 metres), said Monica Teichman, who runs the market at Tree-Mendus Fruit Farm in Eau Claire, just north of the Indiana state line.

Coming in second this year was Brian's father, Rick, with a spitting distance of 77 feet, 7-1/2 inches (23.66 metres). Kevin Bartz took third with 64 feet, eight inches (19.71 metres).

Last year's big winner was Matt "BB Gun" Krause with a distance of 41 feet, 6-1/2 inches (12.66 metres).

Spitting in the wind

"We had some really good spits here. The breeze felt good, but ... it wasn't good for spitting. We needed to change because we would have been spitting into the wind."

Organizer Monica Teichman on changing the direction of spitters

The Krause family has won 26 of 41 of the contests since farm owner Herb Teichman launched the tournament in 1974 as a lark — but also to mark the region's tart cherry harvest.

Brian Krause holds the record spit of 93 feet, 6-1/2 inches (28.51 metres), set in 2003.

More than 100 people tried to qualify Saturday for the championship round.

A strong breeze may have accounted for the long distances after organizers changed the direction of the spitting, organizer Monica Teichman said.

"We had some really good spits here," she added. "The breeze felt good, but ... it wasn't good for the spitting. We needed to change because we would have been spitting into the wind."

This year's winner received tee time at a nearby golf course, a plaque, a medal, work gloves, a drill bit set and various gift certificates.

Billy Connolly (Brave, Lemony Snicket) narrates this Scottish retelling of Aesop's moral fables, collected and translated by Nobel Prize-winner Seamus Heaney. The old Scots performed these tales of animal trickery and rascality with a delightful rhythm of speech and the inventive depth of folk wisdom. Enhanced with video extras, animations, and insights, it's an engaging and provocative cultural study.

25th anniversary

Seinfeld stands the test of time

Saturday marked 25 years since the airing of Seinfeld's pilot, the first of 180 episodes that would rewrite TV history.

In a tribute to the comedy about nothing, Time magazine says it's remarkable that the show didn't really spawn any legitimate imitators, which speaks to just how unique and irreplaceable it was.

Neon Trees singer comes clean on Pop Psychology

Tyler Glenn. With two hit albums already under his belt, frontman hopes good things come in threes and finally reveals what it's like to be a gay Mormon rock star

Neon Trees frontman Tyler Glenn has never shied away from being himself onstage, but with the release of a new album, Pop Psychology, he decided it was time to open up a bit more about his private life.

In April, he came out as gay via a Rolling Stone interview. And not only gay, but a gay Mormon, an unusual combination in pop culture. It capped a rough period in Glenn's life, where he was having trouble keeping his cool onstage. With the help of a therapist and a supportive producer, Glenn decided he was ready to share the news in a big way.

Glenn actually only started coming out to people in his life at the tail end of the production process for Pop Psychology.

After working with producer Tim Pagnotta on finishing the album, Pagnotta expressed some curiosity about what the new songs were about, and Glenn decided to share his secret.

"I think his reaction inspired me to tell everyone else because he responded in such a loving, almost congratulatory way, which was really something I never put together with being gay," says Glenn.

That said, he's pleased to be a spokesman for equality who is both gay and religious. "A lot of the time we see in the media, like, it's either religion or it's being gay and I think the two can live in the same sphere," says Glenn.

Asked if he thinks it's important to public figures to come out, Glenn replies honestly, "I used to not. I get people doing it on their own time, in their own way, and I don't know everyone's situation, but I do think it's important."

Of course, his news has "turned a lot of heads in Utah," where Glenn lives, but he's happy to be a role model on this front, despite some discomfort with the idea in the past.

"I'm really glad that some people feel like they have a voice now, and ... if that's the role model I can be, then I'm comfortable with that," says Glenn.

For those wondering if Glenn was trying to hide something on prior records, he says he thinks the older songs are honest representations of who he was at the time.

For the song Teenage Sounds off the band's second record, Picture Show, a lyric like "I'm sick of being called a fag because I'm queer," once reflected people's reaction to his flamboyant style of dress.

"Now that means more to me, obviously, and I think it means more to people," says Glenn.

Demi Lovato

Demi Really Don't Care about Selena's drama

Selena Gomez has one less BFF in her corner to count on, as fellow former Disney star Demi Lovato is reportedly done with the serial Justin Bieber-dater, according to Hollywood Life. Last week, just before the Fourth of July holiday, Lovato un-followed Gomez on Twitter, so we know it's serious. She also posted then quickly deleted a rather cryptic tweet: "Swimming away from the bulls— bye b—h." According to sources, Lovato — who is clean and sober — had been finding Gomez a "headache" she needed to cut loose. "Demi tried to help Selena with her substance problems and also getting rid of Justin from her life and it is apparent Selena refused to listen to Demi's advice," a source says.

Jessica Simpson

Jessica Simpson and Eric Johnson were married over the weekend in front of 250 friends and family at the luxurious San Ysidro Ranch, located in Montecito in Santa Barbara County, Calif., according to E! Online. The big day comes after months of planning and several years of engagement, as Simpson first confirmed her plans to marry Johnson in November 2010. They have two children together, 2-year-old daughter Maxwell and 1-year-old son Ace. As Simpson explained during a visit to Good Morning America earlier this year, there were no fears of either getting cold feet at this point. "I already feel like we're an old married couple," she said. "Like, if he wanted to run, he could've run when I was hormonal and pregnant."

Are you a money moron? It's time to change your ways

Finance flubs. If you lack an emergency fund or are paying off debt with other debt, you need to read this

GAIL VAZ-OXLADE
Gail blogs daily at gailvazoxlade.com

Buying a house that's beyond your budget can leave you living on the financial edge indefinitely. ISTOCK

It's easy to make mistakes with your money, particularly when so many other people are doing exactly the same thing you are. How bad can it be if everyone is doing it? Have a look to see how many of these money mistakes you are making:

Carrying a balance on credit cards or on a line of credit
Sadly, many people don't even know how much they owe. They keep their debt in little piles, never adding it up so they don't have to face the truth. They say things like, "My debt isn't anywhere near as bad as my sister-in-law's," and then pat themselves on the back. If you're carrying a balance, it means you're spending more money than you make. Stop.

Letting expenses get out of control
Expenses have a tendency to creep up, Up, UP. And if you aren't paying close attention, they can eventually exceed your income.

When was the last time you looked over your bills to see how much they've gone up? Has your income gone up as much as your hydro, cable, and gas bill?

That's why a spending journal is so important. Writing it down consistently keeps you paying attention to the details.

Taking payday loans
What the hell are ya thinking? If you can't afford to live on what you're making now, how are you going to make it through next week when you have to repay the loan, plus the interest (upwards of 700 per cent, when you include the fees)? If you need money that badly, sell something or get another job.

Having no emergency fund
Experts have been touting the importance of having an emergency fund since Betty White was a lass. So why is it that so many people still don't have enough (or any) money set aside, just in case?

The rule of thumb is that you should have enough cash to cover six months' worth of essential expenses. Cash in the bank means you have options so you can deal with whatever life throws at you. No cash, no options!

Buying a house that's too expensive
Little money down, amortized forever has led people to believe they can afford houses that are more expensive than they can actually manage.

If you had to save 20 per cent of a $400,000 house — that's $80,000 — you might think twice about buying such an expensive house.

I know real estate values have gone through the roof, but that's no excuse for strapping your cash flow to the point where you're living on the edge all the time.

Paying only the minimum amount on debt
If you haven't made a debt repayment plan that has a specific end date, you're spinning your wheels.

The only way to get debt free is to do the math. Divide what you owe by the number of months until you want to be out of the red. Add your monthly interest costs. That's how much you have to pay to be done with debt.

Using debt to repay debt
If you're using balance transfers or cash advances on credit cards to make minimum payments, or using your line of credit to pay your minimum on your credit card, you're a full-fledged money moron.

This used to be illegal, but in the name of marketing and selling more credit, the balance transfer (using credit to pay credit) was created and now the line is so blurred that people think it's fine.

It's not. And it's going to catch up with you eventually. WANT TO BE SMARTER ABOUT YOUR MONEY? GO TO MYMONEYMYCHOICES.COM AND FOLLOW THE ROAD MAP TO SUCCESS.

Twitter overuse may shorten marriage: Study

Facebook's risky too. Social network use has a dark side when it comes to impact on romantic relationships, research finds

Heavy Twitter use can lead to conflicts and other damaging effects on marriages and romantic relationships, a study said Thursday.

The study followed up on previous research that showed similar impacts for Facebook and raises questions about whether social network use in general is bad for relationships.

The study, appearing in the journal Cyberpsychology, Behaviour, and Social Networking found that "active Twitter use leads to greater amounts of Twitter-related conflict among romantic partners, which in turn leads to infidelity, breakup, and divorce."

The author, University of Missouri doctoral researcher Russell Clayton, concluded that these findings add to the evidence about social network use's dark side for personal relationships.

Clayton's research published in the same journal last year found that a high level of Facebook usage was associated with "negative relationship outcomes."

The journal's editor-in-chief Brenda Wiederhold said these findings highlight the need for more study on social network use.

"Since much of the social networking research is in its infancy, we do not know if other media, such as Instagram will also impact relationships in a negative way," she said in a statement.

The latest study surveyed 581 adult Twitter users. Clayton found that the more often a respondent reported being active on Twitter, the more likely they were to experience Twitter-related conflict with a partner. AFP

Too much tweeting or Facebook can mean you might find yourself all alone with your laptop — and no spouse or significant other, research shows. ISTOCK

The great Canadian car share

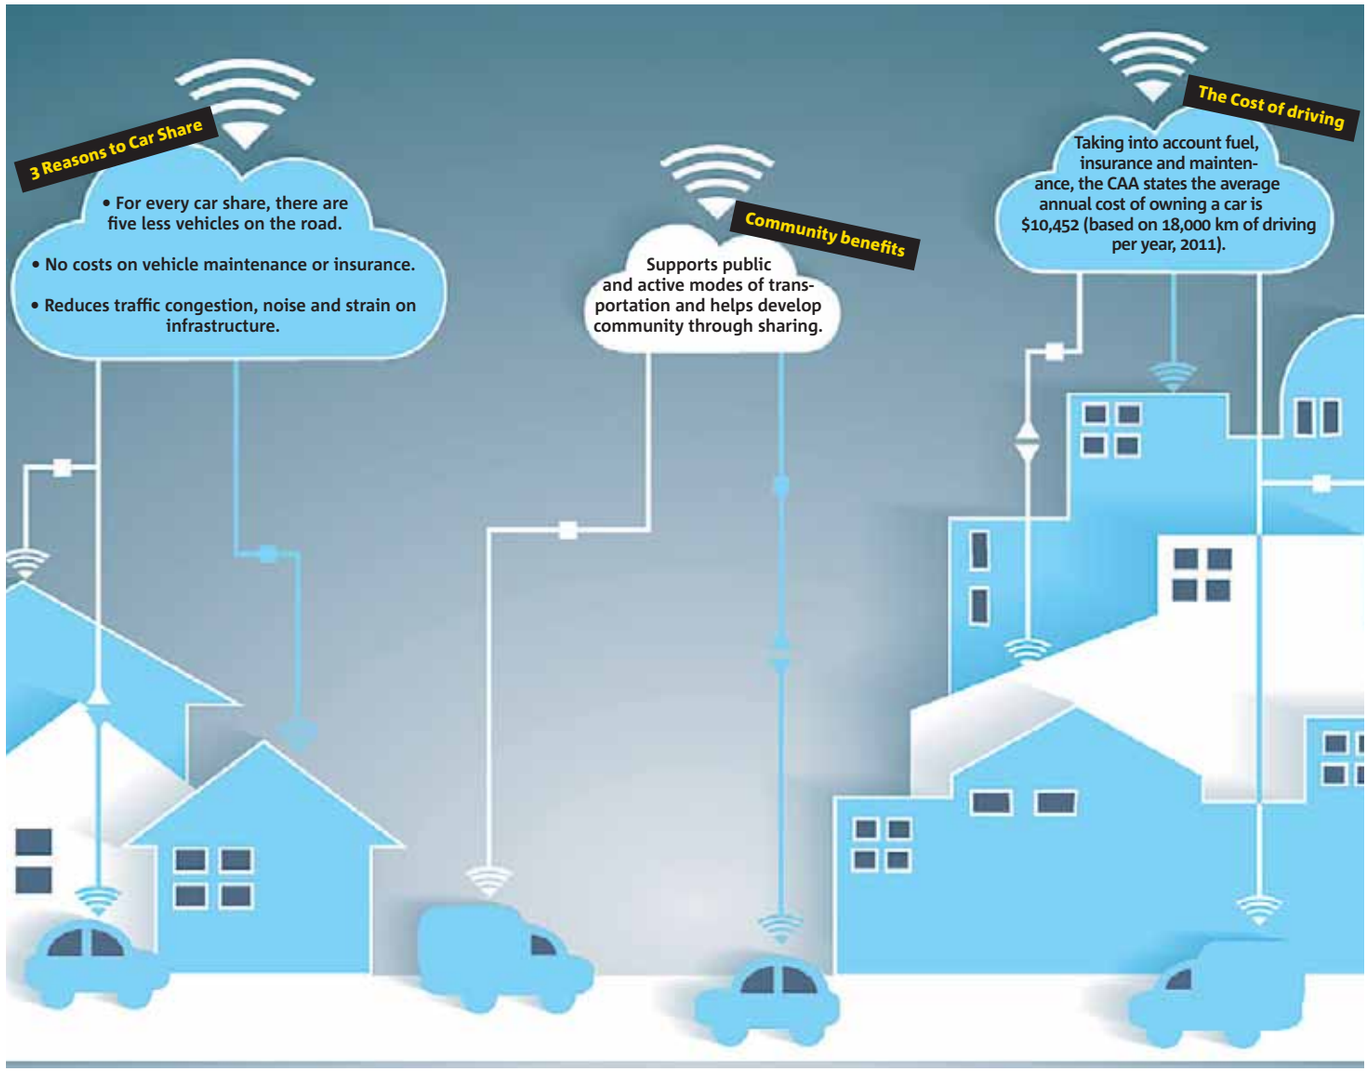
Rallying the roads.
Drivers are opting for a more fuel efficient and environmentally friendly way to ride

STEVE GOW
Metro World News

There's no doubt that the rise of car-sharing co-ops has been impactful in Canada. Although urban centres have led the way, suburban towns are getting the message. If you're looking to start sharing, here are some of the most convenient ways to do it in some Canadian cities.

Car sharing in Canada

- Regina. The Regina Car Share Co-Op loans vehicles for as little as $5 per hour. reginacarshare.ca
- Ottawa. VRTUCAR has over 100 fuel-efficient vehicles. vrtucar.com
- London. Community CarShare provides vehicles on a pay-per-use basis. communitycarshare.ca
- Winnipeg. Peg City Car Co-op has been around since 2011. pegcitycarcoop.ca
- Edmonton. E-town has no car-sharing co-ops. Motorists can use the city's Rideshare program. Email transplanning@edmonton.ca



3 Reasons to Car Share
• For every car share, there are five less vehicles on the road.
• No costs on vehicle maintenance or insurance.
• Reduces traffic congestion, noise and strain on infrastructure.
Community benefits
Supports public and active modes of transportation and helps develop community through sharing.
The Cost of driving
Taking into account fuel, insurance and maintenance, the CAA states the average annual cost of owning a car is $10,452 (based on 18,000 km of driving per year, 2011).

Greater Toronto Area population: approximately 5.9 million

With such a dense population (and traffic snarling urban arteries), companies renting hourly vehicles such as Zipcar, Car2Go and AutoShare are certainly taking advantage. Stashing cars at many locations around the city, potential customers can easily walk to a nearby parking lot and pick up their ride. There is a slight difference in each company however. For instance, if you're looking to stock up on bulky groceries, don't go with Car2Go since they specialize in small, two-passenger SmartCars. Visit zipcar.ca, autoshare.com or car2go.com.

Greater Vancouver population: approximately 2.4 million

Vancouver also has Zipcar and Car2Go as viable vehicular options. But the West Coast city also proudly boasts Modo. Originating 17 years ago with only two cars, this company takes a grass roots approach to car sharing and costs start at merely $7.50 an hour (plus fees). In all, the three companies have more than 800 vehicles spread across the metropolitan expanse. Visit modo.coop.

Calgary area population: approximately 1.4 million

Although Car2Go is also firmly settled in the Stampede City, Calgary Carshare is the leading member-owned, non-profit car-sharing company in Alberta. The co-op features two rate plans, the option of larger vehicles such as Dodge Caravans and has made its presence in the city since 1999. Nowhere is carsharing more suitable than in the sprawling landscape of Calgary, where it seems everyone drives! Visit calgarycarshare.ca.

Saskatoon area population: approximately 292,600

Relatively new on the prairies, The Saskatoon Carshare Co-op was recently incorporated and the community-owned enterprise is still growing — but then so is this booming city. Still, they may only have a two-car fleet of Nissan Versas but both are available to co-op members and casual drivers 24 hours a day for as little as $8 per day (plus fees). Visit saskatooncarshare.com.

Metropolitan Halifax area population: approximately 408,700

At just a few years old, CarShare HFX is also in its juvenile stages, but growth has been steady. Although membership is a bit costly and convoluted (with several types of memberships), CarShare HFX vehicles feature such benefits as free parking at "pay and display" lots on the waterfront. Plus, members can receive discounts at several retailers in town. Visit carsharehfx.ca.

Pre-college students get a final push

'Summer melt.'
Money problems, housing issues and other details cause many students to abandon higher education plans

The excitement of acceptance into that dream college has passed. The first day of classes is still weeks away. But the resources provided by high school teachers and computer labs are no longer available for recent graduates.

Education researchers and academic counsellors call it "summer melt," the precarious time when some college-bound students fall through the cracks, at risk of abandoning their higher education plans entirely.

In St. Louis, a drop-in counselling centre helps such students negotiate financial aid agreements, housing contracts and the other many details of college enrolment. School districts in Chicago, Dallas, Miami, Minnesota and West Virginia are among those using text messages to keep aspiring college students on track.

"You get the acceptance letter and start the celebration," said Shauna Cunningham, a high school guidance counsellor who's spent the past two summers at the St. Louis Graduates High School to College Center. "They don't realize all the other steps."

Recent studies by Harvard University's Center for Education Policy Research found that an estimated 20 per cent of graduating seniors from urban school districts in places such as greater Boston, suburban Atlanta, Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas, abandon their plans to attend college over the summer.

Among prospective community college students, the summer melt rate increases to about 40 per cent, said former Harvard researcher Ben Castleman, now an assistant professor of education and public policy at the University of Virginia.

Precarious time

"Students encounter a pretty complicated array of financial and procedural tasks to complete over the summer." Ben Castleman, professor and former Harvard researcher

A lack of financial aid is to blame in about half of those cases, Castleman said. But students also wind up getting derailed by much less significant hurdles, from failing to meet course enrolment deadlines to registering for summer orientation programs.

"The idea was that if you could get a kid to graduate from high school, they'd been accepted, and chosen where to go, (then) that student was going to show up," he said.

"What our work shows is that in fact, students encounter a pretty complicated array of financial and procedural tasks to complete over the summer."

Daisha Tankins, 19, had planned to attend Spelman College in Atlanta after graduating from high school last summer. But unable to afford the private college and unwilling to go into more than $100,000 in debt, she enrolled at Harris-Stowe State University in her hometown. Like Spelman, it is a historically black school, but with far more modest costs.

Tankins now works as a peer mentor at the St. Louis counselling centre.

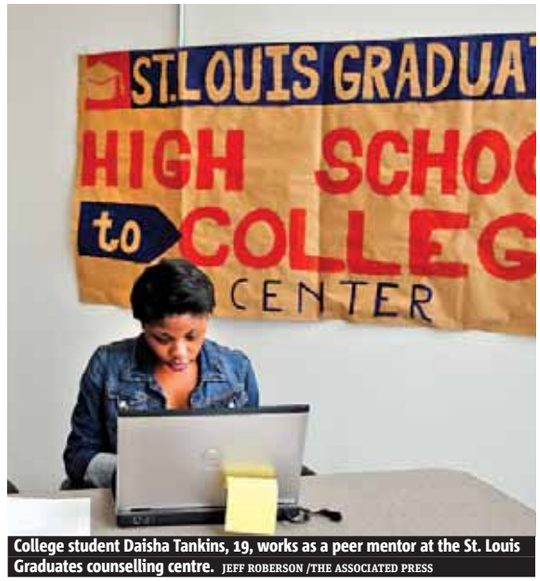
"A lot of students are bewildered and can't understand the magnitude of what's going on," she said.

School districts and colleges are beginning to find that reducing summer melt doesn't require dramatic intervention.

For just $7 per student, school districts in Lawrence and Springfield, Mass., were able to boost their number of college-bound graduates, according to research by Castleman and Harvard colleague Lindsay Page.

Students received introductory text messages such as "We want to help you w/ college! Stay tuned for key summer to dos. Save this #, you can txt us for help!"

Their parents received similarly tailored messages with reminders about financial aid, tuition bill deadlines and campus health insurance.



College student Daisha Tankins, 19, works as a peer mentor at the St. Louis Graduates counselling centre. JEFF ROBERSON /THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

On a recent afternoon, St. Louis high school graduate Kelcee Burton stopped by the counselling centre.

Burton has been accepted at the University of Missouri and expects to receive roughly $18,000 in grants for the coming year. But gaining admission was only the start for Burton, who was four when her mother died.

There are immunization records to track down and a housing waiting list to manoeuvre. She stopped by the counselling centre at a friend's suggestion and left with confidence about starting college come August.

"I really didn't even think about all these details. I had no idea," she said. "I thought I was good to go."

Outdoor living goes hand in hand with barbecuing, and a perfect choice for the grill is chicken breast.

Boneless chicken breast without the skin is one of the leanest meats you can enjoy.

Consider that a four-ounce portion of chicken has only 120 calories, two and a half grams of fat and one gram of saturated fat compared to a fatty steak, which has more than 300 calories, 23 grams of fat and nine grams of saturated fat.

Now, add a delicious seasonal salsa over top and you have created a masterpiece.

Watermelon, avocado, jalapenos and a squeeze of lemon is all that's needed.

The fresh and crispy texture of the salsa goes well with dining outdoors.

To prevent excess liquid, dice watermelon just before cooking chicken and drain any excess liquid.

Ingredients

Salsa

- 1 1/2 cups diced crisp watermelon
- 1/3 cup diced red bell pepper
- 1/2 cup diced ripe avocado
- 3 tbsp fresh mint or cilantro
- 1 tsp lemon juice
- 1/2 tsp lemon zest
- 2 tsp olive oil
- 1 tsp minced jalapeno
- 1/2 tsp finely chopped garlic
- 1 oz crumbled feta cheese

- 1 1/2 lb skinless boneless chicken breasts (about 4 to 6 breasts)

Directions

1. Prepare the salsa by combining the watermelon, red bell pepper, avocado, mint, lemon juice, zest, olive oil, jalapeno and garlic in a bowl.

2. Preheat a barbecue to medium-high heat or lightly coat a large, non-stick grill pan with cooking spray and set over medium-high heat. Grill the chicken breasts, turning half way just until cooked or internal temperature reaches 165 F. Serve the salsa on the grilled chicken, garnish with crumbled feta.

Youthful Caps form strong back-line pair

MLS. Johnny Leveron and Carlyle Mitchell show improvement in win over rival Seattle

cam.tucker@metronews.ca

Injuries and ailments to two veteran centre backs have once again opened up an opportunity for Johnny Leveron and Carlyle Mitchell on the Vancouver Whitecaps' back line.

After incurring difficulties in a loss to Colorado nine days ago, the youthful partnership had a rebound performance in a 1-0 victory on home turf against the Seattle Sounders FC on Saturday.

The Sounders were without their top players — Clint Dempsey, DeAndre Yedlin, Osvaldo Alonso and Gonzalo Pineda — so it's likely had they been available to be in the lineup, the pairing of Leveron and Mitchell may have been in for a tougher evening.

It must also be said the Whitecaps were without experienced centre backs Jay DeMerit (ankle) and Andy O'Brien (hip) and forced to go with younger central defenders as a result.

Not a hindrance on this night. Leveron and Mitchell defended well against Seattle forwards Chad Barrett and Kenny Cooper, helping secure the fourth clean sheet of the season for Vancouver.

Mitchell, 26 years old and from Trinidad and Tobago, used his size and strength to win balls in the air.

Leveron, 24 years old and from Honduras, was stingy and aggressive against his opponents, but there to provide proper support for his teammates, as the Whitecaps looked to build their attack from the back.

This situation isn't new for the Whitecaps.

In fact, Leveron and Mitchell played a bulk of last season together when DeMerit and O'Brien were injured.

However, with DeMerit and O'Brien both healthy to begin this season, Leveron and Mitchell have been used primarily in depth roles.

Mitchell didn't see any playing time in MLS competition until June 25, after the World Cup break had ended and the club schedule resumed.

Leveron had only two starts prior to June 7 in Philadelphia.

That's changing right now, and more playing time may be the biggest key to their collective improvement.

"I don't think you can judge any player on one game or two games," said head coach Carl Robinson, referring to the time Leveron and Mitchell spent playing together on the back line last year.

"I had no concerns about the partnership."

Concerns loom with lions off to dismal 0-2 start

Well, that didn't take long.

The B.C. Lions are off to a dreadful 0-2 start to the season, following a 24-9 loss to the Montreal Alouettes on Friday. Quarterback Kevin Glenn threw two more interceptions and is now up to six on the season — in 53 pass attempts.

He threw seven picks all of last season, in 335 pass attempts.

Two things have magnified the stumbling offence: Glenn's inaccuracy throwing the football, and an offensive line going through transition, to say the least.

The so-far toothless Leos face the Saskatchewan Roughriders at Mosaic Stadium in Regina on Saturday.

Three years ago, B.C. went 0-5 to start the season, then won the Grey Cup at home. Back then, one might have gotten the sense that team was better than its record at that time indicated.

This year's edition, not so much.

The concerns are numerous. Two of them lie with an offensive line struggling to find cohesion — especially with a recent injury to Andre Ramsey and his replacement Ryan Cave being inserted into the lineup after just two practices — and a quarterback that has looked more like a wide-eyed rookie than a veteran with 13 years' experience.

Welcome to Week 3.

Joker gets last laugh in Wimbledon men's final

Novak Djokovic's large lead in the rollicking Wimbledon final was slipping away, due in no small part to Roger Federer's regal presence and resurgent play.

No man has won tennis's oldest major tournament more often than Federer, and he was not about to let it go easily. Djokovic went from being a point from victory in the fourth set to suddenly caught in the crucible of a fifth, and knew all too well that he had come up short in recent Grand Slam title matches.

Steeling himself when he so desperately needed to, Serbia's Djokovic held on for a 6-7 (7), 6-4, 7-6 (4), 5-7, 6-4 victory after nearly four hours of momentum shifts Sunday to win Wimbledon for the second time — and deny Switzerland's Federer what would have been a record eighth championship at the All England Club.

"Novak deserved it at the end, clearly," said Federer, "but it was extremely close."

Horoscopes by Sally Brompton

♈ Aries
March 21 - April 20
Partnership issues and money issues will be important today. If nothing else, you must resist the urge to splash out on expensive gifts for loved ones.

♉ Taurus
April 21 - May 21
Life may a struggle right now but on the plus side, you will learn something useful. You are here for a reason. Stop complaining and start living.

♊ Gemini
May 22 - June 21
There are times when it is right to act on a hunch and this is one of them. With surprises planet Uranus strong in your chart, you should act on what your inner voice is telling you.

♋ Cancer
June 22 - July 23
If you let your fears get the better of you today you will regret it later when you realize what a great opportunity you have allowed to pass by. If you see an opening, go through it.

♌ Leo
July 24 - Aug. 23
You may be tempted to let a rival off the hook today but the planets warn that may not be a good idea, if only because it is likely to encourage others to take advantage of you too.

♍ Virgo
Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
You can make yourself happy or sad — the choice is yours. The effort that goes into being depressed can be diverted into finding things that delight you.

♎ Libra
Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
The more nice things you say about others today, the more nice things they will do for you in the near future. You will, of course, have to make your compliments sound sincere.

♏ Scorpio
Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Take a less provocative approach with people you have been in disagreement with. Your differences are not so wide that you cannot find areas where you both can agree.

♐ Sagittarius
Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You may think your charm will get you everything you desire, but that is not an excuse to cut corners. Everything balances out, so if you cheat others now you will pay for it later.

♑ Capricorn
Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
Every once in a while — like today — you do something that shocks even those who know you well. Tomorrow, no doubt, you will be making apologies.

♒ Aquarius
Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
Don't give up on a relationship just because it is going through a bad patch. It is times like these that test your commitment. If you hang in there, the tide will turn in your favour soon.

♓ Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
If an issue is causing you sleepless nights, focus your mind on something else. Eventually you may find that you no longer care who wins.
